EX-SECY. OF NAVY WHITNEY IS DEAD.

Died Under Influence of Ether Administered Preparatory to a Second Operation.

HE WAS TAKEN ILL FRIDAY.

Complaint Was Apppendicitis-Sketch Of His Career-A Tribute from Mr. Cleveland.

New York, Feb. 3.-Septicaemia was the immediate cause of the death of William C. Whitney, former secretary of the navy, who passed away Tuesday evening. A semi-official account of his last hours is to the effect that the toxin which produced peritonitis following the operation for appendicitis, reached the brain cells, when there was paralysis and death.

The physicians had concluded to open the superficial wound and examine the area from which the pus was absorbed by the drain inserted after the operation. It was impossible to make this examination without putting the patient under the influence of an anesthetic on account of the great pain. Ether was administered, the wound was opened and the lower part examined. While this was going on three doctors kept the closest watch of the patient's pulse and heart beats. Before the examination was concluded it was noticed that Mr. Whitney was sinking. The administration of ether was immediately stopped but before its effects could wear off he

Dr. Walter B. James, the Whitney family physician, was summoned and found that the condition of the patient was such that after consultation an operation was decided upon and was performed by Dr. Bull. The patient rallied so well that it was fully beleved he would recover.

Mr. Whitney's condition was very grave, however, on Sunday and Mon-day, and at a consultation held this afternoon the conclusion was reached that the only hope for the patient lay in a second operation. A bulletin issued in the morning stated that there had been a slight im-provement in the patient's condition, but shortly before 3 o'clock alarming symptoms were noted and hurrled preparations were made for a second operation. Mr. Whitney was placed under the influence of ether, but whether the operation was proceeded with or not is unknown. When the physicians perceived that the patient was in danger of death Harry Payne Whitney and Miss Dorothy Whitney were immediately notified. They hastened to the side of their father and in a few minutes he had breathed his last.

William Collins Whitney was born in Conway, Mass., July 5, 1841, and was a decendant of John Whitney, one of the English Puritan leaders who settled at Materiown, Mass., in 1635. On his mother's side his ancestry goes back to William Bradford, governor of Plymouth colony. His male ancestors were olony. His male ancestors were without exception men of great strength of character and prominent in ommunities where they lived, some em achieving national prominence. It is just a common cold, people say, there's no danger in that. Admitting their statement, then there are uncommon colds, colds which are dangerous; for many a fatal sickness begins with a cold. If we could tell the common cold from the uncommon we could feel quite safe. But we can't. The uncommon variety is rarely recognized until it has fastened its hold on the lungs, and there are symptoms of consumption.

At the first symptoms the careful person will heed the warning by taking a mild laxative; some vegetable pill that will not disturb the system or cause griping. When he retired from the cabinet in 1889 12 modern fighting vessels of in 1859 12 modern fighting vessels of different types were, chiefly as a result of his labors, finished or in process of completion. They were the foundation of the present navy. his residence in the capital,

"The news of Mr. Whitney's death has greatly shocked me. As I think of him, my mind, passing beyond recent years, dwells upon the days of my association with him in high official duty, and recalls the time when I had the opportunity to enjoy his unre-served and friendly companionship. Our relations have never changed, but the exigencies of life have forbidden recent close intercourse.

"Mr. Whitney had more calm, force-ful efficiency than any man I ever knew. In work that interested him he actually seemed to court difficulties and to find pleasure and exhilaration in overcoming them. His con-quest over the obstacles he encountered quest over the obstacles he encountered in undertaking to build up our navy afforded him greater delight than the contemplation of the great results he achieved in his department of the government. His judgment was quick, clear and astonishingly accurate; and when it was called into action his mental poise was so complete that nather passion nor irritation could neither passion nor irritation could lead it astray.

"While I recall all this with admiration and affection, I recall with more tender sentiment Mr. Whitney's devotion to his friends, his extreme consideration for all with whom he came in contact, his thoughtfulness for the agree and comfort of others, and his ease and comfort of others, and his ready impulse to help those who needed help. DEMOCRAT FAVORS PRESIDENT'S POLICY

Senator Clarke of Arkansas Approves His Every Position In Panama Case.

INFERIORITY OF COLOMBIA.

Had No Right to Assume Equality With United States After Accepting Its Protection.

Washington, Feb. 2 .- Mr. Clarke, the new Democratic senator from Arkanmade his first speech in senate today, He spoke two hours, and announced his endorsement of every position taken by the president in connection with the Panama revolt and in the negotiations of the treaty with the new state. He even said that in view of the provocation given by Colombia, the president might have been expected to go farther than he did in advancing the cause of Panama. He declared that there was more popular support of the course of the president's policy among Democrats than among Republicans, and said that the Democratic votes necessary to rati-fy the treaty were assured.

Mr. Fairbanks also spoke in support of the treaty, contending for the regu-larity of all the proceedings of the administration on the isthmus of Panama Mr. Fairbanks was followed by Mr Clarke (Ark.) who made a speech in support of the treaty. Mr. Clarke lost no time in declaring his absolute ad herence to the policy of the president The question of the wisdom of build-ing an isthmian canal is no longer, he said, a question for discussion, and this declaration was followed by an-other statement in endorsment of the treaty whose terms were, he said, most

He said that the civil war now going on in Colombia is but a reaction of the revolution which has been in progress for the past three years, and in support of this statement he reviewed governmental conditions in Cosaying that its rulers are men who find in warfare their most profit-able and congenial calling. These men are for the canal, he said, simply because they see a prospect of get-ting $10,000,000 out of it, and not be-cause they care anything about the United States, or even about the welfare of their own country. So turbulent were the people that for 30 years there had not been two years of peace. The people of Colombia were worse off than were the people of that region when found 400 years ago by Cortez. Mr. Clarke also found in the treaty of 1846 justification for the at-titude of the United States, and con-tended that Colombia did not have unlimited sovereignty in the sense that England, Germany or France has. He insisted that if Colombia itself could not build the canal it was bound, be-States toward it, to permit this coun-ry to build it. He then declared that as the republic is an accomplished fact it would be an act of foolishness for the United States to refuse to deal with it.

acts of "friendly supervision," he said, should have convinced Colom-bia of the determination of the United States to do right under all circum-stances, and the Colombian people should have known they were asking should have known they were asking too much when they accepted our protection under the Monroe doctrine for 80 years and then demanded the right to be treated as an equal power with the United States. Instead of maintaining a friendly attitude, Colombia, he said, had begun a course of double dealing and bad falth even before the Colombian congress had begun consideration of the Hay-Herran treaty, and this, he asserted, had been continued to the time of Panama's seession. He contended that the Colombian authorities knew perfectly well that the revolution was imminent, and that the revolution was imminent, and there was no foundation for the charge there was no foundation for the charge that the Panama revolt had been incited since the adjournment of the Combian congress. It was not to be denied that the United States knew what was going on in Panama, and if it was necessary to show that the president was unaware of the state of affairs in order to establish his integrity that must be done at the expense of his integrity that order to establish his integrity that must be done at the expense of his intelligence and even of his performance of official duty. Possibly in some matters of detail the president had been rash, but with such matters, Mr. Clarke said, he had nothing to do. He was concerned only with the general principle involved, and with that he had no ple involved, and with that he had no fault to find.

Mr. Clarke announced his disagree-ment with the senators who contended that the president should have turned to the Nicaragua route after failing to secure Colombia's ratification of the secure Colombia's rathication of the canal treaty. His principal reason for this was announced to be his belief that we should have only a sea level canal, which, he said, was possible in the Panama toute and not possible on the Nicaragua route. He did not believe that any but a sea level canal would pay expenses.

would pay expenses.

He declared his gratification that the house expression given in favor of the canal had come from Democratic states, and added, that Democratic votes would make the ratification of the treaty certain. The Republican party could make no such claim, and the president had received no assurances of support from the Republican party at large.

ances of support from the Republican party at large.

Continuing his discussion of the political feature of the canal controversy and extending his contention that the president was without support in his own party. Mr. Clarke declared that the president is now the central figure to a Reishazzar's feast, waiting for a in a Belshazzar's feast, waiting for a friendly Daniel to interpret the hand friendly Daniel to interpret the hand-writing on the wall and prophesy for him whether the chairman of the Re-publican National committee "will fish or cut bait." He also declared that perular support of the president's course in his own party was so luke-warm as to cause great rejoicing, over the announcement that the three prin-cipal federal office holders in Boston were for the nomination of Mr. Rosse-vett, and to cause the announcement velt, and to cause the announcement that Alaska was for him to be emblaz-oned forth in box car letters.

Mr. Clarke made a vigorous appeal for the consideration of the canal ques-tion independent of partisan bias, and when he closed was warmly congratu-lated by a number of senators from both sides of the chamber.

The scrate went into executive session at 4:32 and adjourned at 4:37 p. m.

COLOMBIAN TROOPS. Are Said to be Fighting Indians On Panama Ground.

Panama, Feb. 2 .-- A report has reached the isthmus that Colombian troops are fighting with the Indians on the San Blas coast, which is in Panaman tegritory.
